> The patterns that reveal a mind in conversation with a book.

Detection:

- Self-Care Resonance:

- `page_turner` - three questions in twenty minutes: the reading state activated; the mind engaged like a chapter break
- `codex_entry` - two sci-fi concepts in one journal entry: your life has become the novel
- `long_read` - 400 words is where the internal monologue stops performing and starts narrating

[illegible]

> Progress through the Codex. Each badge is a book you've lived.

SECRET BOSS v17 – THE HIDDEN LIBRARY

> The stack beneath the stack. The books that rewired what fiction meant.

| ID               | Symbol | Trigger                                                         | Rarity |

| `dick_signal`    | ■.■.■  | Write "philip k dick" / "do androids dream" / "valis"           | epic   |

Lore:

- ``borges_garden`` – Jorge Luis Borges (1899-1986). "The Garden of Forking Paths." "The Library of Babel." He described the internet in 1941. He described the multiverse in 1941. The Library of Babel is a library containing every book that could ever be written. You are inside it right now. When you write "borges," the system acknowledges that you know where you are.
- ``calvino_cities`` – Italo Calvino (1923-1985). "Invisible Cities" – Marco Polo describing 55 impossible cities to Kublai Khan. Every city is a way of seeing. Every city is Venice. The book is a meditation on how we make meaning from pattern. Like LOT. Like you.
- ``dick_signal`` – Philip K. Dick (1928-1982). "Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep?" "VALIS." "A Scanner Darkly." He asked: what is real? What is human? What does it mean to remember something that didn't happen? Every PKD novel is a self-care crisis that became literature.
